

AngelEye Health Partners with InJoy Health Education to Provide NICU Parents with Enhanced Educational Resources

Integrating InJoy's video education empowers parents and families and improves outcomes

AngelEye Health, a leader in the delivery of patient and family engagement virtual care solutions, has selected InJoy Health Education, the nation's leading provider of evidence-based, video-rich education as a content partner.

The AngelEye Health Virtual Care Platform enables parents, families, and care teams to stay connected when their newborns and children in a Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) or Pediatric Intensive Care Unit (PICU). AngelEye offers live-stream video, real-time family chat, and HIPAA-compliant, one-way multimedia updates between parents and the care team. Now, with the integration of InJoy's educational content into AngelEye Health's Application, AngelEye enhances a hospital's ability to provide parents with material tailored for their baby's specific condition upon admission and up to 90 days post-discharge.

The application comes with a preloaded library of 50 videos, 25 in English and 25 in Spanish. The easy-to-use interface gives hospitals the flexibility to add and organize branded content as needed. Available in iOS, Android, and web, the combination of visual access and educational content creates peace of mind, enhances patient and family engagement, and supports quality of care and efficiencies across the continuum.

Christopher Rand, chief executive officer of AngelEye Health, states, "InJoy's high-quality- education content is a critical component of our strategy to provide the best possible resources for families with newborns in the NICU. The evidence-based resources offered by InJoy complement the support provided by the hospital team, improve the patient and family experience, and help families feel supported and empowered. With InJoy's content, the Patient and Family Education application helps parents transition smoothly from NICU/PICU to home. "

Carlos Descalzo, the CEO of InJoy, says, "We are pleased to work with an innovative company like AngelEye Health, and we continue to be committed to providing parents and families superior quality educational tools that support their journey in the NICU and beyond."
